INFORMATIVE PROGRAMS

A recent episode of Danger Bay dealt with pesticides and their effect on animals. This really hit home because last week 59 birds were found dead from the pesticide Thimet, used by local corn farmers. Thanks for the good, informative programs.

Patricia Vander Velden Little Chute, WI

GOOD MUSIC

Three years ago when my husband and I subscribed to The Disney Channel we thought the one thing missing was music. We really have enjoyed your new Going Home concerts over the past year—especially The Manhattan Transfer. Thanks for bringing music for adults to The Disney Channel.

Katy and Zach Craig Madison, WI

THE LEGEND LIVES ON

When I was a child of six, Zorro came on the air. It became my favorite TV show. I enjoyed it so very much. A few months ago I was able to get cable and when I discovered that Zorro was on again I immediately ordered The Disney Channel. I'm enjoying it all over again and I'm also pleased to say that my children are also. Thanks for airing one of my favorite shows.

Anne Canari Brooklyn, New York

We're sorry to report that Guy Williams, who gave the role of Zorro its distinctive stamp, died in May in his home in Buenos Aires, Argentina.

THE DISNEY CHANNEL WEIGHS IN

I just wanted to share a funny anecdote with the readers. My family is always watching The Disney Channel. The only channel my four-year-old knows is 41, which is Disney on our cable system.

Every night before their baths the girls (Emily, age five, and Julie, age four), step on the scale to weigh in. One night Julie came running over to me and said, "Mom, I weigh The Disney Channel!" We still laugh about this and she still weighs 41!

Laura Turner West Willington, CT

MANY THANKS

I just want to thank you, thank you, thank you for your wonderful and wholesome shows. We loved Disney's Return to Treasure Island, Goodbye, Miss 4th of July, and The Man From Snowy River.

We hardly ever watch anything anymore except The Disney Channel. I know when we watch I won't have to turn it off in the middle of a program. Keep up the great work and these wonderful shows.

The Zendler Family Dimondale, MI

GLAD TO BE BACK

We returned to The Disney Channel this past November, and are glad to be back. Your programming has really changed to include more entertainment for this childless-and-past-50 couple.

The Shirley Temple series is quite a treat, as well as the Fred Astaire musicals. And of course, The Wind in the Willows series is technically fascinating as well as being quite entertaining. It's great to be back!

Jack and Patty Scroggins Irvine, CA

MAGAZINE PRAISE

We really enjoy your magazine. It lets us plan our TV viewing in advance. My husband and I appreciate the kid's shows for our sons, but also Disney Night Time for us—especially the John Wayne movies.

Officially authorized by Shirley Temple...

THE SHIRLEY TEMPLE

Heidi

One in a series of porcelain dolls capturing Shirley Temple in her most famous movie roles.

The Danbury Mint is pleased to announce an enchanting new Shirley Temple doll — authorized by Shirley Temple herself! This fourteeninch doll will depict Shirley Temple — dimples, smile, curls, ringlets and all — just as she appeared in the famous 1937 movie, "Heidi."

An abundance of bisque porcelain

The Shirley Temple "Heidi" Doll is lovingly crafted in fine imported bisque porcelain. In fact her entire upper body is formed of bisque porcelain, as are her legs and arms. Such an abundance of porcelain is unusual except in the most expensive collector dolls.

Remarkable special touches

Eyelashes, eyebrows, and lips will be artfully painted by hand. Her hair — those remarkable curls and ringlets — will be styled by hand.

She wears her famous "Heidi" outfit — complete with flowered vest, green striped apron and black tights. Notice the frilled petticoat undergarment, the crisscrossed ribbon tying her vest, and the matching red ribbon on her straw hat. She's even wearing those adorable, brown shoes!

An exceptional value

The Shirley Temple "Heidi" Doll is available at the attractive original issue price of $90 which may be paid in three convenient monthly installments of $30 each. This is a remarkable value when you consider that previously available Shirley Temple porcelain dolls have sold at prices in excess of $200.00. You will receive a display stand at no extra charge. What's more, your doll will be accompanied by a personalized serially-numbered Certificate of Authenticity.

A Danbury Mint exclusive

The Shirley Temple "Heidi" Doll is available only from the Danbury Mint. Moreover, as a registered owner of this doll, you will have the privilege — but not the obligation — of acquiring other dolls in the collection with a matching serial number registered in your name only.

DISNEY BEAT

Screen steam

When Rebecca de Mornay landed the seductive role of Lana in Risky Business, she had only spoken one line on screen before: "Excuse me, those are my waffles." (De Mornay stars in Beauty and the Beast on Storybook Cinema; see page 51.)

As the story goes, the screentest for Risky Business started before dawn. By 5:00 a.m., the directors were about to throw in the towel. They had seen 500 actresses and none of them fit the bill—then the long-legged de Mornay sidled in. One steamy reading with Tom Cruise and the chemistry was there.

A first starring role opposite Tom Cruise sounds like the stuff dreams are made on. Not so, according to de Mornay, whose perapatetic youth was spent traveling through Europe with her mother and brother. "I've always been an outsider trying to fit in... I've worked hard to be accepted in [this industry]."

Rebecca de Mornay

Tess Harper

An actress to remember

T ess Harper plays the caring mother of a deaf child in A Summer to Remember (please see page 51).

"Acting is a hands on learning experience," claims Harper, who spent years in training to perfect her skills. She now confesses that all those hours of technique and method did her little good. "I've learned more from other actors than I ever did from a teacher."

Harper should know. Her costars have included such remarkable talents as Robert Duvall, Jessica Lange, and Sissy Spacek. With such a training ground, it's no wonder Harper is getting rave réviews from critics.

Nor is the spirited actress worried about her career taking a turn for the worse. "Some people aren't willing to take the personal risk to become a full-time actor," Harper says of her profession. "You have to pick your path and no one else can tell you what to do."

A Changed

Most people recognize actress Eileen Brennan as the domineering sergeant who made Goldie Hawn's army life miserable in Private Benjamin. In August, viewers can see Brennan in another villainous role in The New Adventures of Pippi Longstocking. (See page 47.)

Brennan continued her samurai-sergeant role in the TV series version of Private Benjamin. The series was popular and her career was moving along smoothly until one October night when, after dining with close friend Goldie Hawn, Brennan was struck by an oncoming car.

The results of the accident were tragic. Brennan's legs and facial bones were broken. Through extensive surgery, physical therapy and the support of her family, Brennan recovered.

The accident did have an effect on Brennan's career—at least her view of it. "When something like this happens you discover every moment is precious," Brennan says. "I'm no longer driven... I don't have that angst about Hollywood competitiveness."

n Parker

Stevenson

- Hardy har har

W asn't he in The Hardy Boys?" That's what most people say when Parker Stevenson's name is mentioned. Stevenson plays the erudite Bostonian uncle of a young frontier girl in Caddie Woodlawn (please see page 51).

Stevenson is thankful for the show that launched his acting career—even if it did garner him a pristine image. "I'm proud of the series. There isn't a day that goes by without someone coming up and saying how much they enjoyed it."

These days Stevenson is spending most of his time with his wife Kirstie Alley (Cheers) on their old ranch in Encino, California. They don't have any children yet—though there is a barn full of animals. "Animals are Kirstie's passion," laughs Stevenson. "I'm just the zookeeper...I even have to go to the feed store."

Coming attractions from the Walt Disney Studios

To arrive in Never Land follow "the second star to the right and straight on till morning." These are the magical directions given to Wendy, Michael and John by Peter Pan—that sprightly boy who in 1953 showed the world an enchanted land of youth and imagination. This summer, The Walt Disney Studios will re-release Peter Pan for a whole new generation of children—and their parents—to enjoy.

Peter Pan is only one of the several family films offered by the Disney Studios this season. Cheetah, scheduled for release in August, is an exciting adventure story set against the rugged beauty of Africa's terrain. The story involves two plucky American kids and their Masai friend who attempt to return their pet cheetah to his natural environment. Throughout their journey, they encounter mysteries of the African wild and learn a new respect for the native culture.

In the Disney tradition of animated classics comes The Little Mermaid this fall. Based on the fairy tale by Hans Christian Andersen, The Little Mermaid tells the story of a young sea princess who falls in love with a prince she has rescued from shipwreck. She begs a sea-witch to change her fishtail to human legs so that she may win the prince's heart. The film includes a delightful musical score and superb Disney animation, as the mermaid swims with tropical fish in the sea.

A rich Disney legacy... a Bradford Exchange recommendation

Worldwide, limited-edition plates are the only collectibles traded on an organized exchange, and the Bradford Exchange is at the very heart of this exciting international market. That means Bradford analysts can spot trends in the making...and recommend what's hot and what's not.

Right now, a major Bradford recommendation is "Bibbidi-Bobbidi-Boo," the first collector's plate approved by The Walt Disney Company Board of Review. Based on original Cinderella animation cels, it is produced in full color under the hallmark of Knowles China and issued in an edition of no more than 150 firing days. Not all plates go up in value; some go down. But like exceptional plates now trading at ten or more times issue price, "Bibbidi-Bobbidi-Boo" appears to have what it takes to go up in value once the edition closes. To order now at the $29.90 issue price—fully backed by Bradford's 365day money-back guarantee-complete and mail the order form at right.

ARCHIVES

Dave Smith, The Walt Disney Company archivist, answers questions about the company's history and its film productions.

When I was a child my parents took me to Disneyland, and I seem to recall an area for the Mickey Mouse Club. Roy Williams did a drawing for me of Mickey Mouse. Where was this club area?

-E.F., Dayton, OH

The Mickey Mouse Club Headquarters was located at Disneyland in the Main Street Opera House from June, 1963, to September, 1964, and kids visiting the headquarters were made honorary Mouseketeers. The area was decorated with sets from the television series. Big "Mooseketeer" Roy Williams, by profession a Disney storyman and sketch artist, loved drawing for Disneyland guests.

Would Disney have used the same actresses to provide voices for the wicked stepmother in Cinderella and Maleficent in Sleeping Beauty, and for Flora in the latter film and Aunt Sarah in Lady and the Tramp?

-M.N., Califon, NJ

You have a fine ear for voices. Eleanor Audley provided the voices for both Maleficent and Lady Tremaine, and Verna Felton did Flora and Aunt Sarah.

I was surprised to hear Bette Midler singing "Baby Mine" in Beaches. Wasn't that song from an earlier Disney film?

-P.O., Prattville, AL

"Baby Mine," with lyrics by Ned Washington and music by Frank Churchill, was originally written for and used in Dumbo.

What can you tell me about Donald in Mathmagic Land? I teach architecture and #### find it very useful with my classes.

-T.L., Hingham, MA

Donald in Mathmagic Land was originally released in theaters in 1959 on a bill with Darby O'Gill and the Little People, Two years later it had the honor of being introduced by Ludwig Von Drake and shown on the first program of Walt Disney's Wonderful World of Color, when our TV series moved to NBC. The film was made available to schools. and has become one of the most popular educational films ever made by Disney. As Walt Disney explained, "The cartoon is a good medium to stimulate interest. We have recently explained mathematics in a film and in that way excited public interest in this very important subject."

Are tours offered of the Disney Studios?

-J.L., Des Moines, IA

Because there was no space for visitors, in order to satisfy early requests to see how his cartoons were made, Walt Disney produced a behind-the-scenes tour of the Studios as part of his feature, The Reluctant Dragon (1941). A decade later, he considered a tour as part of an amusement park concept, but again space was a problem as that idea grew into Disneyland, which was eventually built 38 miles from the Studios, Now, however, we do have a production facility that can be visited, the Disney-MGM Studios Theme Park at the Walt Disney World Vacation Kingdom in Florida. This Studio was opened to the public in May.

Where did Walt Disney get the two locomotives he used in The Great Locomotive Chase?—H.H., Altadena, CA

While the two original locomotives, the "Texas" and the "General," were still in existence, they were museum objects and not available for filming. To double for the "General," Walt borrowed the "William Mason" from the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad, and for the "Texas," he was loaned the "Inyo" by Paramount Pictures.

DISNEY CHANNEL TRIVIA

Tom Tryon, who starred in Moon Pilot (see page 51), had earlier portrayed Texas John Slaughter for Disney. Tryon became known in later years as a best-selling author.

■ A Spaceman In King Arthur's Court was released in the U.S. as Unidentified Flying Oddball after a London premiere (page 41).

■ July marks the 50th anniversary of the Mickey Mouse cartoon, The Pointer. It was in this cartoon that the public saw for the first time a redesigned Mickey Mouse. Most noticeable were Mickey's eyes—now they had pupils in a white eye where as before they were simple black ovals.

■ Margaret Kerry recently paid a visit to the Archives. Four decades ago she posed as the model for Tinker Bell in Peter Pan, reissued to theaters this summer. Miss Kerry still has the pixielike twinkle in her eyes which led to her selection for the role.

The wicked Maleficent lures Sleeping Beauty to the spinning wheel. Eleanor Audley provided the voice for the great Disney villainess.

Readers who have Disneyrelated questions can write to Dave Smith, c/o The Walt Disney Archives, 500 South Buena Vista Street, Burbank, CA 91521

DISNEYNIGHTIME

Every evening at 9:00 p.m., The Disney Channel presents a distinctive mix of entertaiment for adults.

___ The Fab Four

John Lennon cackles in demotic German as he plays with his plastic U-boat and his English battleship in a king-sized tub awash with bubbles. "Ah, die filthee Englischer," he crows as George Harrison passes by. Then, to the strains of "Rule Britannia," shrieking "Havoc! Heavens! Happy! Help me!" John slips beneath the surface—and possibly down the drain—leaving a quizzical George to remark, "Torpedoed again, eh?"

At an inane press conference where The Beatles can't get a bite to eat or a thing to drink (the journalists are feeding happily at the trough, however), an elegant young reporter asks Ringo, "Are you a 'mod' or a 'rocker'?" "Um, no," he tells her, "I'm a mocker."

Two scenes from 1964's A Hard Day's Night, the first feature film to star the world's smash singing sensation, The Beatles. Directed with madcap pace—and sly humor—by Richard Lester, the movie is a caustic look at life in the celebrity fast lane—and a caustic look at the price of fame itself. A Hard Day's Night is also the world's first rock video. It features such classic Beatles hits as "Can't Buy Me Love," "Tell Me Why," and, of course, the film's title track. MTV fans take note: This first rock video is also the best ever made.

A Hard Day's Night premieres on The Disney Channel on July 6 at 9:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time)—the 25th anniversary of its Royal Premiere in London.

Stanley Kubrick's sci-fi mysticism

Another landmark film of the 1960s receives its Disney Channel premiere in July on The Best of Hollywood as part of a mini film festival celebrating flight. The landmark: Stanley Kubrick's bizarre and beautiful epic 2001: A Space Odyssey. While no one has ever adequately explained the plot of this film, its succession of brilliant images and its superb score seem, 21 years after its theatrical release, to perfectly sum up one side of the '60s experience.

2001 is, simply put, the story of man's odyssey from his genesis as a thinking (and killing) ape, thanks to an extraterrestrial black monolith, to his (final?) apotheosis as a new species. It's a fascinating tribute to 1968 and the Age of Aquarius.

Filmmaker John Ford.

John Ford's masterpieces

Fifty years ago, a young California writer, born and bred in the Salinas Valley, published a novel that seared the conscience of the nation. It was called The Grapes of Wrath, and in it Steinbeck chronicled the fate of the Joad family and the thousands like them who were forced off the land by the Great Dust Bowl—and into the migrant labor camps of California. There the migrants were cursed and exploited and oppressed—they were the despised "Okies."

Fifty years ago, Steinbeck's socialist views and his outrage over the treatment of the Okies were almost too powerful for Hollywood to touch—almost. As it happened, The Grapes of Wrath was turned into a film, a classic film at that. John Ford's cinematic adaptation of the novel appeared a year after Steinbeck's book, in 1940. It brought Ford his second Oscar for Best Director. The Grapes of Wrath, incised with superb portraits by Henry Fonda as Tom Joad, Jane Darwell as the indomitable Ma Joad, and John Carradine as "the Preacher," enjoys an encore presentation on The Best of Hollywood on Monday, August 14 at 9:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

John Ford won yet another Academy Award for Best Director for the 1941 picture How Green Was My Valley. Adapted from Richard Lewellyn's novel, the movie is also about a close-knit family struggling to survive-in this case, the setting is the coal fields of Wales. It stars Walter Pidgeon, Maureen O'Hara, Donald Crisp and the young Roddy McDowall. How Green Was My Valley-also voted Best Picture of 1941—premieres on The Best of Hollywood on August 21 at 9:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time).

And finally, John Ford fans should note two other of his pictures playing on The Disney Channel in July. Henry Fonda is the star of Drums Along the Mohawk (see page 43) and My Darling Clementine (page 59). The latter film, originally panned by critics in 1946, is now considered one of Ford's gems.

FAMILIES

Kids in the kitchen

By Gretchen Haight

One of the most comfortable places for a parent to spend time with a child is in the kitchen. Sharing in the preparation of food, whether it's family supper or a special treat your child wants to make, is an opportunity to spend easy, unpressured time together. But we frequently think of meal preparation as just the opposite: yet another task to be done at the end of an already exhausting day. It's easier to do it ourselves, we say, and we banish the children until supper is ready.

Look at it the other way around. You're already up and busy, you can't read a book or watch television, so why not use the time in a way that makes everyone feel good, rather than condemning yourself to isolated labor and your children to frustrated attempts to get your attention. Furthermore, the below-

It may take a little time to work out tasks for children of various ages to perform in the kitchen, but that is a small investment well worth making.

counter-height child loves to help, and older ones will be more willing to share tasks if they've started young.

It may take a little more time in the beginning to work out desirable tasks for children of various ages, but it's a small investment well worth making. Children learn the satisfaction of helping out and that any particular task is not overwhelming. An added benefit: in following recipes, kids can improve reading and math skills.

As a child grows older, his or her ability to cook for himself gives him independence as well as an appreciation for what it takes to keep a household going. It's the best defense against ending up with an insensitive teenager who expects everything to be done for him or her. Furthermore, he or she will be more comfortable in other people's houses, being able to offer help and actually knowing on which sides fork, knife and spoon belong

Upcoming issues of The Disney Channel Magazine will include ideas and recipes for kids in the kitchen. We'll suggest easy-to-make treats for preschoolers as well as snacks for sleepovers. Kids of all ages enjoy cooking. And now that cooking is more and more thought of as an art, or at least as TV entertainment, and chefs can even become minor celebrities, kids—especially boys—aren't quite so apt to think of cooking as a deadly chore.

Research indicates that families of corporate movers transplant well.

Such mobile families tend to be tighter knit than non-mobile ones.

Smooth moves: Making corporate relocation work

By Barbara Bronson Gray

Uprooting the family—the term itself conjures up a negative image of cutting ties with a primal support system. For many families, however, relocation can represent not only a substantial career opportunity for one or both parents, but a chance for positive change for children as well.

Corporate relocation—moving because your employer wants you somewhere else—is continuing to rise, even though the costs of moving people around have also climbed. The average total relocation costs for an employed homeowner were $35,705 in 1987, according to the Employee Relocation Council (ERC) in Washington, D.C. In 1988, however, more than half a million employees relocated, says the FRC

The anxiety of relocating is for many simply the fear of change. Will life be as good somewhere else? Is the cost worth the benefit? And parents often worry that their children will be the ones to bear the brunt of the move. They fear their kids may have trouble making friends and achieving in schools.

But according to new research from the Kellogg Graduate School (Continued on page 12)

of Management at Northwestern University, the families of corporate movers transplant well.

Jeanne Brett, professor of Organizational Behavior, and Linda Stroh, Director of the Social Policy Information Institute, studied 29 families over an 18-month period, all with children ages six to 18. They wanted to learn whether the stereotypes of mobile families were true.

They're not, say Brett and Stroh. In terms of self-esteem and job satisfaction, mobile families and non-mobiles score similarly. Mobile children do not have more behavior problems or greater difficulty making friends. And the mobile kids are just as well adjusted socially.

What they discovered is that mobile families are, in fact, tighter knit as families, "probably because they've coped with the relocation," says Stroh. Mobile families also seem to be more cohesive, according to this study, and they experience a lower divorce rate.

But what mobile families gain from the "let's hang together" attitude they seem to lose in community connection. The study showed that frequent movers were less satisfied with their relationships with their neighbors and the community than were the stay-put families. That's not surprising, say the researchers, since the families only stayed in the community an average of two and one-half to five years.

The creation of a strong support system and the systematic selection of meaningful activities seem to be the most important ways to redevelop roots.

"The greater your support system, the greater your resilience," says Dr. Lynn Baker, a psychiatrist in private practice in Santa Monica, California. "And a support system is something you must constantly build. Don't devalue old relationships because you're moving up or to new places," warns Baker. Long distance telephoning is so much a part of our lives today that it's easy to stay in touch with friends in other places.

Brett and Stroh suggest movers use the relocation to reevaluate their activities and decide which pursuits—baseball or tennis, drama club or Boy Scouts—interest their children most. (This goes for parents, too.) Be aware that the corporate mover's spouse may have more difficulty making new friends if he or she is not working outside the home.

The study found that the postmove well-being of family members is partly dependent on the well-being of each other. Families—to regroup and reroot must work together to turn the relocation into a good move.

Tips on making a move work

By Barbara Bronson Gray

- Consult the children about the move. If they cannot have veto power, they may at least be able to make other choices related to the move.
- Help the children to get back into the activities they enjoy as soon as possible. Use the move as a chance to reassess preferences, such as "Is football still what you want, Eric?"

- Establish a stable routine as soon as you can.
- Don't focus just on the kids. Plan for your own activities and interests.
- Make the house familiar and comfortable as quickly as you can. Use the old sofa for awhile, put out the family photos and hang your favorite pictures.

Sunburn: Prevention is everything

By Barbara Bronson Gray

There's no need to fear the summer sun's rays if you heed some basic advice that's especially important for children.

Sunburn occurs when two of the skin's protectors—the top layer of skin and a pigment called melanin—are overwhelmed, says Patricia Cavender, M.D., a Los Angeles dermatologist. "The lighter your skin, the more you are at risk," she says.

Cavender recommends that children use waterproof sunscreens, applied 30 minutes to an hour before going outside. "The waterproof quality is important," she says, "because kids are not going to let you put lotion on four times a day, and parents are not likely to run into the sprinklers to do it, anyway."

"Choose suncreen number 15," Cavender suggests, "and while adult sunscreens are fine, the children's lotions have a more gentle base. Don't play the numbers game: the differences between sunscreens at levels 6, 8 and 10 are really not important," she says.

The goal of sunscreening, according to Cavender, is to get no tan at all, since there is no such thing as a healthy tan. Childhood sun exposure creates greater risk for basal and squamous cell carcinomas as well as contributing to aging and wrinkling of the skin.

Cavender recommends that parents try to schedule children's activities to avoid 10:00 a.m. to 2:00 p.m. sun exposure—the most damaging time in the sun.

And if a sunburn should occur,

There is no such thing as a healthy tan. Youngsters should use a children's lotion that is waterproof and has a sunscreen protection factor of 15.

Cavender suggests parents keep the child out of hot water and try an Aveeno (oatmeal) bath (available over the counter) if necessary to soothe the skin. If blisters occur, compresses and antibacterial ointments may be in order, she observes.

HOLLYWOOD BOUND

It was a sizzling 96 degrees when Max, Amber and their parents arrived in Hollywood. They had been planning their summer vacation to the sunny state for months. Each member got to pick a special attraction and Amber's dream was to see Tinseltown.

The flamboyant neon lights were just beginning to shine as the sun set over Hollywood Boulevard. "Well Amber, what do you want to do first?" asked her Mom.

"Let's go see the Chinese theater and put our hands in the cement!" exclaimed Amber.

"You know the cement's not still wet, Amber," Max teased.

Their parents dropped them off with plans to meet them in half an hour. Max and Amber ran up to a big crowd standing in front of the theater. "What's going on?" asked Max.

They nudged up to the front of the crowd and saw lights and movie cameras. Suddenly a man with a megaphone announced, "Ladies and Gentleman we have a slight problem—our stars didn't show up! We need two kids to star in this commercial..."

AN ORIGINAL DISNEY CHANNEL MINISERIES

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

Dickens's masterpiece is now a magnificent drama in the Disney tradition of fine family entertainment.

n a dank and dark Christmas Day, the orphan Philip Pirrip—called Pip by his sister and her blacksmith-husband—takes a forbidden walk to the church-yard where his parents lay buried. Looming out of the mist behind him is a sinister figure—an escaped convict named Abel Magwitch. Seizing the boy and making horrible threats lest he disobey, Magwitch demands that Pip steal for him food and the blacksmith's file to aid his escape. Terrified, the boy obeys—little knowing that this meeting will forever alter the course of his life.

Thus begins Great Expectations, a sixhour original Disney Channel miniseries based on Charles Dickens's classic novel. Starring in this superb family drama are some of the finest actors in the English-speaking world: John Rhys-Davies, Jean Simmons (who made her film debut in David Lean's 1946 film version of Great Expectations) and Anthony Hopkins. Great Expectations will be presented in three, two-hour installments on consecutive evenings at 8:00 p.m. (Eastern/Pacific time); its premiere run is from Sunday, July 9, through Tuesday, July 11.

Great Expectations, set in the early Victorian era, follows the fortunes of Pip from his meeting with the convict Magwitch to his early adulthood. Thanks to a mysterious benefactor, Pip becomes a young man with "great expectations"—a gentleman who will one day inherit a fortune or a sizable property. But the real story of Great Expectations is Pip's encounters with the world as he rises in society. Again and again Pip must confront hard lessons about himself, his values, and his own expectations—lessons that bring him to a profound recognition of simple truths. Great Expectations is the tale of Pip's voyage to self-discovery.

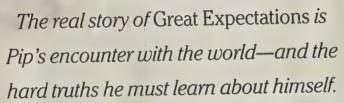

Great Expectations is also filled with some of the greatest characters—major and minor—ever created. Three play fundamental parts in Pip's life—and portraying them are three wonderful actors.

Anthony Hopkins is mesmerizing as the brutalized convict Abel Magwitch. It is Magwitch who will also give an older Pip a lesson in the true meaning of courage and nobility. Playing Miss Havisham, the embittered, reclusive spinster who has planned revenge on the world since being jilted at the altar by her lover, is Jean Simmons. (Ms. Simmons portrayed Miss Havisham's adopted daughter Estella in David Lean's film version.) And John Rhys-Davies brings to life that gentle giant Joe Gargery, Pip's first friend and the man who will teach him about the meaning of love, friend-ship, and true self-worth.

Great Expectations is a magnificent family drama—a sprawling tale that only a miniseries could do true justice to. On these and the following two pages, we present a gallery of the immortal scenes and characters you'll meet in six hours of unforgettable television.

ip meets the bitter recluse Miss Havisham (Jean Simmons, above, left) who will play a majorand sinister—role in inflating Pip's expectations about his station in life. Hers is an influence that can even make Pip ashamed of his gentle friend, the blacksmith Joe Gargery (John Rhys-Davies, above, right), who is married to Pip's hardhearted sister. Anthony Calf (right) portrays the grown Pip, who finds himself released from being Joe's apprentice after a mysterious benefactor endows him with "great expectations" of future riches. The benefactor has asked that Pip be sent to London to be turned into a proper gentleman of means.

GREAT EXPECTATIONS

A six-hour original Disney Channel miniseries starring Jean Simmons, John Rhys-Davies, Ray McAnally, Anthony Calf, Kim Thomson, Adam Blackwood—and Anthony Hopkins as "Magwitch." Based on the novel by Charles Dickens.

Premiere:

Sunday, July 9; Monday, July 10; Tuesday, July 11 (airs at 8:00 p.m.).

Encores:

July 14, 15, 16 (at 11:00 p.m.). July 24, 25, 26 (at 1:00) p.m.). August 1, 2, 3 (at 9:00 p.m.).

All times listed are Eastern/Pacific time.

ip has been in love with Miss Havisham's adopted daughter Estella (Kim Thomson, left) since childhood. But Estella warns Pip that Miss Havisham's upbringing has left her a coldhearted and cruel person. Below, Pip samples the life of a gentleman in London, further heightening his "expectations" and ego. Having been transported to Australia's penal colonies for the "term of his natural life." Magwitch (below, left) risks a death sentence to return to London, bearing news that will alter Pip's expectations.

r. Jaggers (the brilliant Irish actor Ray McAnally, left) is the London lawyer who represents Pip's benefactor. Jaggers has banished all human sentiment from his life. Once more, Pip (right) finds himself aiding Abel Magwitch in a desperate gamble to flee England and evade the hangman's noose.

THE AMERICAN HUMOR INSTITUTE NEW YORK, N.Y.

April 25, 1989

Spring came to Denmark on Easter, and after I whooped it up with the Anglicans in the morning, my wife and I took the train out to a forest north of Copenhagen and hiked along a two-track dirt road around a marsh, through great stands of beeches starting to leaf out. Birds warbling in Danish under a blue sky, a haze of green in the underbrush, the smell of good warm rot in the dirt, outcroppings of yellow and white and violet flowers-I tried to translate in my head those lines of Wordsworth's in Danish: "There was time when meadow, grove, and stream,/The earth, and every common sight,/To me did seem/Appareled in celestial light,/The glory and the freshness of a dream," but couldn't think of a word for "appareled" except klaedes (clad) which doesn't ring like appareled does, and neither do foreign places. A gorgeous day in a lovely land, but still, America is always in one's mind.

Two years ago, I told the people who listened to A Prairie Home Companion that I'd miss them more than they'd miss me, which is certainly true, but I never knew how much I'd miss America. I live in big foreign cities—New York, and now and then in Copenhagen—and this tour—from Greenville, South Carolina, Cincinnati and Indianapolis, to Springfield, Illinois, and Madison, Wisconsin, and down through Iowa and Kansas and Oklahoma to Texas, and out Southwest to San Diego and up to Los Angeles—is a trip back to the America I think about every day and imagine. #### GARRISON KEILLOR HITS THE ROAD

"A polite person goes where he is invited," Garrison Keillor quipped as he described the itinerary of A Prairie Home Companion: The Third Annual Farewell Performance. The Disney Channel Magazine spoke to Keillor as he was preparing to take a stage version of his popular radio show—which aired on Minnesota Public Radio from 1974 to 1987—to 13 U.S. cities this May and June. "The tour takes us through some gorgeous places in America," Keillor continued, "and I hope in the final version for the The Disney Channel that we can show some of that.

"I chose some cities that I particularly wanted to visit. I've never been to Cincinnati or Indianapolis or Springfield, Illinois. Cincinnati is the 'Queen City of the Ohio.' And David Letterman is from Indianapolis, which immediately makes one curious. Springfield of course is the home of Abraham Lincoln. If you grow up reading about Lincoln when you are young, like I did, reading his letters and the Sandburg, he comes to haunt you."

Taking A Prairie Home Companion on the road is a formidable task. "The show changes from place to place," Keillor observed, "as it changed rather dramatically during the short tour we took with the Second Farewell Performance. I never like to do two things in a row. We're also working away on what happens to all of those people we're responsible for in Lake Wobegon. It's a question of trying to figure out what's happening there. I think about them a lot as I walk around New York. I seem to think in circles mostly, looking for the right notes that make up true fiction. Some people of course don't believe there is any such thing as true fiction, but they're wrong."

True fiction: it's a perfect image to describe Keillor's monologues and A Prairie Home Companion—as subscribers of The Disney Channel will discover when Garrison Keillor returns to say goodbye once again.

arching over the asphalt, the sidewalk slightly askew from the spring thaw and the tree roots, trikes on the front walks, lawn sprinklers swishing across the grass and the porch. A dog on the porch. Lights behind the thin curtains. The blue light of a TV set. Rock 'n' roll in an upstairs bedroom. A little charcoal smoke in the air, a whiff of burgers. Back in the alley, a gang of kids skidding around on the gravel, giggling, a kid counting out loud up to fifty. A screen door slaps and a dad marches out to the garage. Yard after yard, block after block, every sight and sound and smell is utterly familiar.

This is my neighborhood of childhood comfort and fantasy, of teenage ambition, and of the tenderness and misery and splendor and comedy of marriage. Movies and novels of brutality, sexual cruelty, galloping greed, and evil intrigue, may sell a zillion copies but they're irrelevant to the life of this avenue, which is based on faith, hope, love, and humor. In Copenhagen, our kitchen looks down on a little paved courtyard called a gaard, where somebody spent their childhood. but it wasn't me and I haven't much feeling for it, nor for our street of handsome brownstones in New York, which sometimes makes me feel like Gene Kelly in Singin' in the Rain and sometimes like Marlon Brando in On the Waterfront ("I coulda had class! When I was twenty, and reviewed shows for the college paper, I felt that a true sign of intelligence was restlessness and dissatisfaction, the ability to see through hypocrisy and pretense: only dimwits stood up and cheered; the task of we intellectuals was to demolish illusion. Twenty is a tough age to please. But somewhere along the line I became a husband and father, and settled on the Avenue, where cynicism doesn't wear well, and I began to think that another task of intelligent people is to describe what we love. I could write an attack on Lake Wobegon in thirty minutesthat bastion of smug provincialism and selfrighteousness and galloping mediocrity and asphyxiating intolerance-and it would take me ten or twenty or a hundred times as long to write a homage to my little town; the attack would be more fun to write, goodness knows, but the homage, I think, would be more truth-

to 1987, a long run, but none of us on the show ever knew how many people listened or why or what they made of it. I don't think nostalgia had much to do with it, or a yearning for "simpler Midwestern values." Midwestern values ain't simple. They're mysterious and you could spend a lifetime struggling with them. (The really simple values are the commerical ones found in the media—the value of What's Hot This Week—which tends to patronize the people of the Avenue.) Maybe our old radio show appealed to people because, awkward as it often was and not altogether well conceived, it struck them as real and hit an occasional note that reminded them of somebody they knew or a great event in their past or the loveliness of the present, and they heard the Lost Chord. I don't know. I was busy on stage at the time. But after the show, walking up the hill from the World Theater past the Civil War monument and the St. Paul Cathedral and along Portland Avenue, a handsome American avenue of old houses with big yards, I sometimes got into an expansive mood and talked all the way home. Just told her common stuff she was curious to know about America. About girls I used to know, square dances, cars, beer parties on the Mississippi, Opening Day at the ballpark, Bible camp, havrides, potluck suppers, the Christmas windows at Daton's Dept. Store, Valentine's Day: all exotic and interesting to a foreigner, and now that I'm a foreigner too, it's exciting to me. I never thought I could love the Avenue more than when I left, but since I became a stranger in the city, I love it more. The city offers the great gift of solitude, which any man can appreciate who has some of the Norwegian bachelor farmer in him-that stubborn breed who prize independence above all and observe strict rules to maintain it: do not permit women to occupy a role of influence in your life, do not accept civic or other types of responsibility, remain free of all work that comes with a schedule, and avoid extravagance and luxury so as not to become dependent on it. One can envy the bachelor farmer life sometimes, but it's not my life and it's not yours. We chose the extravagance of love and marriage and children. We live on the Avenue of Backyards, a real place in the heart, an avenue of affection, good humor, loyalty, passion, and grace, and this Third Annual takes me back to it. The good thing about leaving home is that you see it more clearly and can come back and tell them how sweet it was, which it still is, which they already knew a long time ago but may be glad to hear again. So here we are. -GARRISON KEILLOR hat kind of questions do you ask a one-man show business institution? An entertainer who has been working in vaudeville, radio, television, film and the recording industry-squeezing in a career as author along the way—for over 86 years? What exactly do you ask a man who has played Altoona, Pennsylvania and God? Whose daily health regime at 93 has nothing to do with spas, seaweed or soy milk but rather with cigars, black coffee and very dry martinis. What do you say to a Lower East Side boy with a fourth grade education who at one time struggled to make a show business career singing, dancing and joke-cracking opposite a seal, a dog and anybody or anything else that didn't have other plans at the moment—until he hooked up with a petite Irish-American girl from San Francisco? Who went on to become one half of one of the most successful show business acts in the history of entertainment and who now in solo performances packs in the crowds all across the globe, from Las Vegas to the London Palladium? Mr. Maestro, a little "Ain't Misbehavin" music please. The answer is...you can ask George Burns anything you want. After all, he's seen and heard it all at least twice. And if he didn't, it probably wasn't important. Or funny.

GEORGE BURNS, OFF THE CUFF

By Alexandra Poliyea

GEORGE BURNS

A lucky audience of young and old alike gets to ask George Burns any and all kinds of questions during A Conversation With George Burns, an hour of humor and wonderful fun taped during the opening of the new Disney-MGM Studios Theme Park in Florida. (A Conversation With George Burns premieres Sunday, August 27 at 9:00 p.m., Eastern/Pacific time; see page 55 for other airdates.) Perched on a director's chair, alternately punctuating his responses with a puff on an El Producto cigar, George Burns, the entertainer's entertainer, holds forth on everything from soup to nuts. On the nuts part George Burns should especially know, having been married to one of the loopiest, most genuinely adorable actress-comediennes in show business history—Gracie Allen.

With George Burns, everything's a story. Let him talk about his childhood growing up on the Lower East Side of New York City, where he was born Nathan Birnbaum in 1896, the ninth of 12 kids. Then as now, all his off-stage friends called him Nat or Nattie. Burns's father, a Polish emigre, passed away when Burns was only seven years old, leaving the family struggling to get by. Burns jokingly recollects in his writing that one of his sisters dreamed of the day she would be able to scrub floors in a silk dress. The family had an air-conditioned bathroom, Burns notes, that was located right out back of their tenement home.

Right from the beginning, George Burns had his heart set on a career in show business-in vaudeville. Show business was, after all, the ideal way to make a living. As Burns reminisces in one of his books, "You got to wear nice clothes, you got to travel, sometimes you got paid and it didn't require heavy lifting." He started performing at seven years old, singing and dancing on street corners. His first ensemble act was the Pee Wee Quartet, a group of neighborhood boys, one of whom later became a gangster and ended up in the electric chair. On deciding to follow a professional career in vaudeville, Nattie Birnbaum renamed himself George because it was the name his favorite older brother Isidore liked. The last name came from the company, Burns Brothers, that he used to steal coal from as a kid.

George Burns's early years of struggle on the vaudeville circuit saw him billed under many names, including Gide, Jed Jackson, Maurice Valente, Harris, Jack Garfield and Jose. He even became Eddie Delight for a time when the real Eddie Delight decided to get out of show business—and entrusted Burns with all his business cards. Singlehandedly Burns was the entire MacFry and Company. But George Burns was George Burns that fateful day when he was first introduced to Gracie Ethel Cecile Rosalie Allen, an unemployed San Francisco dancer scraping by in New York City. Burns wanted to form a new vaudeville act, and he thought he would try a woman as a partner for a change.

That thought launched a thousand quips.

George Burns first met Gracie Allen at the show business hangout Wienning and Sberber's Restaurant in Manhattan in 1923. Burns made it clear right up front: He was the star. Burns was looking for a "feeder," a straight man to feed him the setups for his punch lines. The 60-40 split of the take would reflect Burns's predominance in the act. And of course, his name would come first in the billing: Ladies and gentlemen, Burns and Allen.

The pair made their debut at a five dollar a day booking at the Hill Street Theatre in Newark, New Jersey. Burns recollects there was perhaps all of 15 people in the audience. As Gracie gave Burns the straight lines a curious thing occurred. No matter what Burns answered it was Gracie that got the laughs. Not one to let pride stand in the way of audience opinion, Burns rewrote and reordered the material so that by the end of the three-day run Gracie had most of the punch lines. And as the months of their working together passed, Burns refined this rewriting so that his verbal contribution to their onstage dialogue was reduced to the barest of essentials. "So how's your brother?" would set Gracie off into a long loop of lopsided logic.

Their act gained in popularity, first booked with increasing regularity as a "dissy" (a disappointment act that filled in for scheduled acts that had to cancel), and then scheduled as a first bill item in their own right. Burns found he was falling in love not only with success but with Gracie as well. They married in 1926, the first marriage for both of them. Well, not exactly. George Burns had been married briefly to Hermosa Joe, in real life Hannah Siegel. The two were a dance act. When they were booked for a long road tour, Hannah's parents insisted that the two couldn't go on the road together unless they were wed. So Burns and Hannah got the license at City Hall, kept to their separate quarters during the tour, and divorced amicably upon its conclusion. When Burns married Gracie though, it was for keeps, a booking for the next 40 years of life.

Ask George Burns anything to do with Gracie. There aren't enough hours in the day for Burns to talk about her, recollecting their success as an entertainment team and as a loving couple. The duo increasingly gained attention with acts that developed into the world-famous "Dizzy" and "Lamb Chop" routines. Six weeks after their marriage, they signed a five-year contract for the princely sum of $450-600 a week to play one of the biggest vaudeville circuits in the United States. Those days of Burns tossing a beach ball to the seal were very far away now.

By 1930, Burns and Allen had conquered England with their humor, moved their residence to Beverly Hills, California, and made their first film together, a nine-minute short filmed at the Astoria Studios in Queens, New York. They took to the air waves for the first time in England, going on the air to promote their upcoming stage appearance. Gracie was the first of the team to be featured on radio in the United States, when she was a guest star on Eddie Cantor's Chase and Sanborn show. Burns and Allen went on to appear on the radio shows of Rudy Vallee and Guy Lombardo before ending up with their own show in 1933, the General Cigar sponsored Adventures of Gracie. Burns and Allen were to remain on radio until 1950, when they moved their talents to the realm of television with The Burns and Allen Show.

When Gracie retired from show business in 1958, Burns kept on performing and producing. With Gracie on the sidelines now, Burns hooked up on-stage with Carol Channing. Performing life was different but it was good. Home life was different but it was also good. And then, at age 58 in 1964, Gracie died of heart failure.

For Burns the possibility of life without Gracie didn't seem like a possibility—just some outrageous idea in a script till the reality happened and his "Googie" was no longer able to bid him goodnight. To this day, Burns keeps Gracie's wedding ring in his pocket on a watch chain. And every month, he visits her at her resting place at Forest Lawn Cemetery to fill her in on what's going on in his life.

How was life after Gracie's passing? If the personal readjustment was sometimes near overwhelming, recasting his show business career was also hard. These days, Burns can command fees upwards of $60,000 for a one-hour, one-evening performance, but it was a slow struggle up a crumbling hill in those 10 years between Gracie's death and the first indication of Burns's show business resurgence, his Academy Award-winning performance in Neil Simon's movie The Sunshine Boys. It's this first-hand knowledge of how success and struggle are two sides of the very same coin that keeps it all in perspective for Burns.

It's a good thing George Burns can handle success because these days, his life is full of it. Since his Academy Award, he has triumphed at his roles in Going In Style, the Oh God movie series and most recently the film 18 Again. He's a stellar hit on the nightclub, college and convention circuits. He has been named "Man of the Year" by US Magazine. This year he received the Kennedy Center's lifetime achievement award and was inducted into the Television Academy Hall of Fame.

How does it feel to be sitting there in the spectacular new surroundings of the Disney-MGM Studios in Florida? Ask George Burns and he'll probably answer with his trademark response: "Look, at my age, it's nice to be here. It's nice to be anyplace." But to find out exactly what Burns says in reply to this and all the questions, you'll just have to tune in to A Conversation With George Burns. Watching may not guarantee that you'll live as long as George Burns but it will guarantee many laughs—and perhaps offer you a few one-liners to feed to the seal the next time you visit the zoo.

Premiere Grade Rating Plus Investment Potential

The Ashton-Drake Galleries has reviewed "Little Red Riding Hood" against The Uniform Grading Standards for Dolls—ten strict criteria used to evaluate artistry and quality. "Red Riding Hood's" distinctive facial sculpture, charming Old-World costume, and unique posing features have helped her earn the Grading Standards' highest rating—Premiere Grade.

Considering her Premiere Grade certification, and the fact that a closed-edition, first-issue doll from Knowles has increased in value as much as 420%, we believe "Red Riding Hood's" investment potential is very promising.

An Ashton-Drake Galleries Exclusive "Little Red Riding Hood" can be yours to cherish for only $68.00. But act promptly...this extraordinary doll is issued in a limited edition that will close in 1989. Each doll is handnumbered and comes with a matching numbered Certificate of Authenticity.

Your Satisfaction is Completely Guaranteed

You may, without hesitation and for any reason, return "Little Red Riding Hood" to us at any time within one full year after you receive her. We will refund (or credit your account if you pay by credit card) your full purchase price, including postage, with no questions asked.

Sunday Night Showcase THE GREAT ONE

This special is perhaps the most detailed look at the life of comedy genius Jackie Gleason. From his impoverished beginnings in Brooklyn to his 16 years on prime time television, Gleason's life is recounted with clips and personal interviews with such close friends and admirers as Art Carney and Sheila MacRae. (2:00) Aug. 13, 23

The Best of Hollywood HOW GREEN WAS MY VALLEY

A young Roddy McDowall plays a Welsh boy who hopes for a better life than what his mining town can offer. This 1941 classic was directed by John Ford and won five Academy Awards. Stars Walter Pidgeon and Maureen O'Hara. (1:48) Aug. 21, 29

THE SUNSHINE BOYS

George Burns won an Oscar for his performance in this comedy directed by Herb Ross. Burns and co-star Walter Matthau are two cranky vaudeville stars who are persuaded to reteam for a television special. Airs immediately following A Conversation with George Burns. (2:00) Aug. 27

The Best of Hollywood FIDDLER ON THE ROOF

John Williams's brilliant musical score garnered him an Oscar in this colorful tale of tradition and conflict in a small Russian village. (2:59) Aug. 28

The Best of Hollywood FRIENDLY PERSUASION

A tight-knit Quaker family struggles to protect their beliefs against the approaching dangers of the Civil War—and the non-Quaker world. Gary Cooper and Dorothy McGuire give winning performances as the Quaker couple. Anthony Perkins plays their son. (1:30)

Aug. 7, 12, 17, 24

Sunday Night Showcase A CONVERSATION WITH GEORGE BURNS

What's George Burns's secret for longevity? "I get up in the morning and I scrub my teeth and I do exercise... and I love what I do for a living." He is one of the great performers of all time, and in this funny and poignant special, a studio audience talks to George Burns about his life in show business and the love of his life, Gracie Allen. Filled with humorous anecdotes and clips. (1:00) Aug. 27

DISNEY NIGHT TIME

Sunday Night Showcase CAROL, CARL, WHOOPI AND ROBIN

Carl Reiner, Whoopi Goldberg and Robin Williams join forces with the inimitable Carol Burnett in this comedy special. Burnett's comedic and musical talents are highlighted in skits and song and dance numbers—including a hysterical ad-libbed scene with Robin Williams. (1:00)

Aug. 20, 30, 31

SWEET LORRAINE

This film is a charming slice-oflife portrayal of a small mountain resort and its eccentric visitors. Maureen Stapleton and Trini Alvarado star. (1:31) Aug. 15

FOR THE LOVE OF MIKE

This 1960 genial Western deals with the struggles of two priests trying to build a church in a small Mexican town. When a homeless boy learns about their financial despair, he enters a sickly horse he has nursed back to health in a race sponsored by a big Western star. Richard Basehart and Arthur Shields play the kindly priests attempting to build a new parish. (1:27) Aug. 9, 19
